About Me

I am Seohyeon Yoo, an incoming M.S. student in AI Systems at KAIST, joining the Mobile Intelligence & Interaction Lab in September 2026 under the supervision of Prof. Sung-Ju Lee.

My research interests lie at the intersection of human-computer interaction, digital healthcare, human-centered AI, and mobile sensing. I study how behavioral and physiological data can help detect vulnerable moments in everyday life, and how conversational systems can provide timely and meaningful support.

I am currently investigating digital interventions for eating disorder recovery, including early detection of binge eating episodes and recovered-peer support mediated by LLM-based chatbots.

Research Interests: Digital Healthcare, Human-Computer Interaction, Human-Centered AI, Mobile Sensing, Conversational Agents

Education

KAIST, Republic of Korea

M.S. in AI Systems

Mobile Intelligence & Interaction Lab

Sep 2026 –

Hanyang University, Republic of Korea

B.S. in Data Science

Mar 2021 – Aug 2026

Universidad Carlos III de Madrid, Spain

Exchange Student in Data Science

Sep – Dec 2024

Work Experience

KAIST Mobile Intelligence & Interaction Lab

Research Intern · Advisor: Prof. Sung-Ju Lee

Research on behavioral sensing and digital interventions for eating disorder recovery.

Jul 2024 – Present

Samsung Electronics DS Division · AI Center

Engineering Intern

Developed anomaly detection pipelines for semiconductor process data and reliable LLM-based review agents.

Sep – Dec 2025

Hanyang Data Mining & Algorithm Laboratory

Research Intern · Advisor: Prof. Hyun-joon Kim

Studied debiased retrieval-augmented sequential recommendation.

Mar 2023 – Mar 2024
